

Pertinent Paragraphs

Remember, this is only the Thursday issue of the Lemon Grove Review. We are still forced to retain most of our local news for our Saturday issue.

The Lemon Grove Review is your local newspaper. You own and control the one and only local newspaper. It is printed in Lemon Grove, for the benefit of the residents of Lemon Grove. We are receiving every day more and more assurances that this is what Lemon Grove residents want. A local newspaper that is a shopping guide for Lemon Grove.

We are still suffering from the unfair practices of the La Mesa Newspapers, but the seven months old Lemon Grove baby can take the knocks. Our mailing list is growing by leaps and bounds. We are making adjustments on subscriptions sold by misrepresentation for "La Mesa" newspapers. We are making good the financial loss so suffered by Lemon Grove residents as far as Post Office regulations are allowing us to do. We cannot give away the Lemon Grove Review to make good, otherwise we would lose our second class mailing privileges.

We hope to have more Grossmont High School News for the first issue of the week. Grossmont High School news, they could never take from us, because we have never received any press releases from Grossmont. These news releases have been reserved for the La Mesa newspapers. We were not aware of the fact that the Lemon Grove newspaper was not listed among those slated for news releases. Being a subscriber and receiving and publishing a letter to the editor from the Grossmont High School Publicity Committee, we thought we were listed for press releases. Anyhow, this week we put Lemon Grove on the map at Grossmont.

THIS AND THAT

by Dr. Frank Weege, D. C.

In the case of those who insist on removing the minerals that Nature placed in their food, it may be making the best of a bad business to restore them to the diet by a deliberate addition of mineral elements. But such a scheme of living suggests the idea of chopping off one's foot and then using a crutch to walk with. Under such circumstances the crutch would no doubt be a useful thing, but except for perverse stupidity in the first place it would never have been required.

The only mineral that anyone has ever maintained could not be had from natural foods in any part of the world is iodine. This element actually seems to be so scarce in the water and soil of certain regions that plants grown there do not contain enough of it to support healthful animal life. But every other mineral can be had in superabundance through the proper selection of natural foods, and, as already noted, there are some that can be utilized in combinations that are found only in living substances.

Furthermore, scientists have not as yet precisely duplicated the vitamins in natural foods.
Numerous chemists are working to discover their chemical identity, the problems involved being important. However, natural food, not chemistry, seems to be the logical place to obtain our vitamins.

Vitamin-bearing foods generally supply the required minerals also. Indeed, the similarity of the sources of good mineral combinations and good vitamin stores is such that one of the leading advocates of natural food maintained for many years that the effects credited to vitamins were nothing more than the results of better mineral nutrition.

Most scientists do not accept this explanation of the action of vitamins, as they believe it to have been conclusively demonstrated that the vitamins are not minerals. No doubt they are right about this, but the fact that the best sources of vitamins usually prove to be also good sources of minerals is certainly an excellent reason for using such natural foods for our mineral supply instead of attempting to get it artificially.

Perhaps with further research, scientists may be able to prove some exceptions to the above conclusion and show us that we can improve our nutrition by some artificial altering of the mineral balance of our diet. Up to date the best results secured in this way have come from increasing the percentage of calcium in proportion to the percentage of phosphorus.

In the case of farm animals, such an increased supply of calcium — or lime, to use the less technical term — seems to be advantageous. Even in this case, however, it cannot be said that man has improved on nature. It seems more probable that the diet supplied by him to farm animals is not as well balanced.

Grain products are relatively higher in phosphorus than in calcium, and, therefore, added calcium may improve them. As meats are also high in phosphorus and low in calcium, no doubt the effect of the undue quantity of meat in the human bill of fare

HOPE HITS WESTERN TRAIL IN NEW TECHNICOLOR FILM

When Bob Hope dons a ten-gallon hat and a brace of shootin' irons, and heads for the wide, open spaces where men are men and women are Jane Russell, fans can expect the laughing time of their movie-going lives.
That's what happens in Para-mount's new Bob Hope comedy in Technicolor, "The Paleface," which arrives next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Grove Theatre with plenty of Indians, rip-roaring action and rib-tickling situations.

According to the movie grapevine, Bob is really a riot, as a traveling dentist long on the laughing gas but short on courage. He gets tangled up with sharp-shooting Calamity Jane, played by Miss Russell, a gorgeous thorn in the side of the law. Jane is induced by the harassed authorities to undertake the dangerous job of finding out who is smuggling arms to the Indians. In order to divert attention from her activities, the resourceful Jane uses the unwitting Bob as a decoy and makes everyone believe — including Bob — that he is the fightin'est fool in the West.

Unfortunately, Jane builds Bob and his ego up to such a point that the foolhardy "hero" blunders into all kinds of trouble from which it becomes increasingly dangerous and difficult to extricate him. What happens when both of them are captured by the Indians is said to constitute some of the funniest action ever put on film.

"The Paleface" features the additional attraction of Hope singing the hit tune, "Buttons and Bows." The comedy was produced by Robert L. Welch, directed by Norman Z. McLeod.

might be offset by such additions to the calcium supply.

To summarize the conclusions of this section, it cannot be asserted that man cannot use an inorganic substance for purpose of nutrition, for evidence of science very clearly shows that he can. But this evidence certainly does not constitute an argument against natural foods. It goes to show, rather, that men and animals need inorganic elements in addition to their ordinary food if this food has been tampered with by artificial processes, or chosen in accordance with the customs of civilization rather than by natural instinct.

Public Invited to Lecture on Alaska

"ONE SUNDAY AFTERNOON" GAY TECHNICOLOR FILM

A gay, happy-go-lucky musical lark is Warner Bros.' richly-tinted Technicolor film, "One Sunday Afternoon," with Dennis Morgan in top form, and Dorothy Malone, Don DeFore and Janis Paige, which opens Friday at the Grove Theatre. Set against the bicycle-built-for-two era, the film is lavishly sprinkled with charm and appeal, with the accent on songs and laughs. Raoul Walsh handled the reins of this production.

Any number of minute details accent this particular period, from the early Bloomer Girls and their chatter about emancipation, to the proverbial spin in the park on Sundays. The picture also utilizes music effectively, getting away from the stylized Hollywood and Broadway patterns of sudden solos or chorus break-ins. Bits of music filter into the scene. Dennis sings a stanza or two, then a group outside of the camera range picks it up and carries it on. Or Miss Malone, very charming in this musical, talks a little, then turns her dialogue into words and music with the conversational theme thus built into close harmony.

The plot is simple. Part of it is told in flash-back form. Dennis courts Janis, but loses her to the aggressive Don. Dorothy however is at hand and Dennis marries her, mostly out of spite. Later when Don has prospered overnight, he invites Dennis to join his firm. However there is a building scandal and Dennis takes the rap for his so-called 'best friend.' When he gets out of prison he is very bitter, and plans to take revenge on Don. This occasion arrives suddenly when Don comes over to his improvised dental office at home for a tooth operation. When Dennis sees what a harassed husband he is to the now temperamental Janis, he forgets the past. He now turns to Dorothy, knowing that they are really the happy ones.

Ralph Blane has fashioned some rippling songs to accompany this tale. Old-timers are utilized effectively for background effect and the title hit, "One Sunday Afternoon" is repeated several times. LeRoy Prinz has handled the dancing chores to good advantage recreating the steps of the period with a flourish. The Technicolor is soft and harmonious for the decor and costumes. And Dennis is there when he sings or even just hums "One Sunday Afternoon."

LETTERS TO THE ED

March 31, 1949

Gentlemen:

I wish to thank you for the fine series of articles that have been appearing in your paper under the heading of "This and That" by Dr. Frank Weege, Dr. Weege's articles alone are worth more than the price of your newspaper.

Especially enjoyable were his last two articles on "Hypnotism." Hypnotism is definitely a form of Black Magic and its practice cannot be condemned too often or too severely. Unfortunately, the general public is ignorant of the many dangers involved, both to the hypnotist and his victims and look upon the practice as an entertaining pastime.

Although the effects of such a practice are not always readily apparent, they are nevertheless inevitable, for every time a person allows another to take control of his Will, his own powers of judgement, discrimination, and other mental and moral faculties become weakened.

It is indeed sad to read of hypnotism being demonstrated in high schools and colleges (with students as the subjects) where we expect the highest possible standards to be maintained.

It is the privilege and duty of every newspaper to inform the public of the dangers involved in this sort of thing. How else will people learn the true facts?

Let us have more of such informative and educational articles. We need them.

Sincerely yours,
Ruth Schulte, Cypress Street

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our neighbors and friends for the sympathy shown us in our recent sad bereavement.

Archie T. Smith and family

Charles F. Chevillon, and feature 35 mm slides of unusual beauty in authentic colors.

Mr. Chevillon served in the army in Alaska four and a half years and was with the department of the Interior for two and a half years. He has travelled extensively throughout the territory, becoming thoroughly familiar with its problems, its people, its military value and its position as an asset of the United States.

The lecture will highlight principal cities, industries, mountains and glaciers, fishing, hunting, transportation, agriculture, mining, Eskimos, midnight sun, Aleutian Islands, wild flowers, berries, and spectacular scenery.

Alaska has been called the air crossroads of the world.

Many who have seen this slide lecture intend to see it again.

Home Owners and Decorators ASKED FOR IT

DEVOE HAS DONE IT

Achieved a Perfect Match in All 3 Interior Finishes

Now your walls, woodwork, cabinets, radiators, etc., can all match perfectly even though you choose flat for walls, semi-gloss for woodwork, and gloss for cabinets!

Now you can get the perfect harmony you've been wanting — or subdue the bad features of a room — and still use the proper degree of gloss for the complete decorating job.

All you do is ask for Devoe Velour Finish — in Gloss, Semi-Gloss or Flat — Devoe has coordinated the shades so you're sure of a perfect match! We have it, of course — ready and waiting — in 8 high-style ready mixed shades and white.

SCHOOL'S OUT
FOR A FULL WEEK
That happy look on your child's face may be due to the fact that he'll not have to go to school until Monday April 18. Its the annual spring vacation for the Lemon Grove school and for most of the other San Diego City and County schools.
There are many things school vacationers may do during the week. They can get busy and plant a garden, or they can go fishing over at Otay Lake, for it is now open for fishing seven days a week. On Wednesday they can be on their best behavior and attend a special Wednesday matinee at the Grove Theatre. If they are successful in getting permission to attend the matinee they will be treated to two pictures in color, Bob Hope in "The Paleface" and Rory Calhoun in "Miraculous Journey." Another thing that school vacationers can do is to weed the yard and garden, for the abundant rainfall this year has resulted in a bumper crop of healthy weeds. Yes, it could be a nice vacation and remember, it lasts until Monday April 18.
